ROMANCE CROPS OUT IN RUNAWAY

Dale Brooks Says Herschel Miller Drove Into His Rig Purposely Sunday.

CAUSING VERY BAD ACCIDENT

Claims That he 'Beat Miller's Time' With Miss Bertha Moore Who Was in Buggy.

There is a tinge of romance and alleged to be a deep laid plot behind the supposed runaway in which Dale Brooks and Miss Bertha Moore were the principals Sunday, while driving from Manilla to St. Paul. The story was to the effect that the horse which young Brooks was driving became unmanageable and ran away. And during the course of the travels of the frightened animal Herschel Miller, in a buggy, appeared in the roadway with the result that there was a collision in which Brooks received a broken collar bone, while the young woman escaped uninjured.

Brooks has a story which is far different and is to the effect that Miller ran into him purposely and upset the buggy. He says it is only the climax of a little love affair in which he and Miller were playing the leading roles.

According to Brooks, Herschel Miller was formerly the "steady" of Miss Bertha Moore, when he appeared on the scene and "beat his time," so to speak. This is alleged to have caused trouble and Brooks says that Miller has made threats against him for stepping in and taking his girl away from him.

Brooks claims that this was the cause of the accident Sunday and not a runaway. He says that they were driving along when they met and passed Miller in another buggy by himself. Brooks further says that just as they were passing, Miller drove into their buggy causing the accident in which he was injured and his friend barely escaped injury.

MISSING MAN IS NOW MINUS WIFE

Judge Sparks Grants a Divorce to Mrs. Ora Kendall Who Alleges Abandonment.

TWO YEAR CLAUSE IS ADDED

Judge Sparks has granted a divorce to Mrs. Ora Kendall, who was suing her husband, Martin Kendall, on the charge of abandonment. Kendall left home several months ago and he has not been heard from since. The court along with the granting of the divorce put a string to it, and as a result Mrs. Kendall can not marry within two years. The custody of the two children, Thelma and Mildred was given to Mrs. Kendall.

RUSH COUNTY MAN WON NOMINATION

Dr. Stanley C. Newlin is Chosen to Head Republican Ticket at Anderson.

ELECTED ON THIRD BALLOT

Rush county was victorious in the Republican nominating convention at Anderson last night when Dr. Stanley C. Newlin, who was born and raised in this county was selected on the third ballot to represent the party at the head of the ticket in the coming campaign. Dr. Newlin was not with either side of the local option forces, having taken no active part in the campaign, but the unexpected swinging of the "dry" forces on the third ballot elected him. One of the other candidates, James Hurst, is also a Rush county man.

DISAGREEMENT IN PEA LARCENY CASE

Jurors Unable to Reach a Verdict Although They Heard Instructions Twice.

ARE DISCHARGED BY COURT

The jury in the case of Chase Pea, charged with grand larceny, disagreed. The jurors heard the evidence in the case and retired at noon yesterday. Shortly after three o'clock they came in to have the instructions of the court re-read to them, and then shortly before five o'clock they came in and reported to Judge Sparks that they could not reach a verdict. They were discharged by the court. Pea, according to the indictment returned by the grand jury, was connected with the thefts of brass near Carthage. Rex Seward and John Pitcher have already pleaded guilty and are out of the reformatory on parole.

HORSE SHOW TO BE BEST EVER

At Meeting Last Night Old Organization Set Oct. 20 and 21 For Annual Event.

COMMITTEES WERE APPOINTED

No Reason Why Show Here Should Not Be Among The Best in The State.

Prancing beauties, lop-eared mules, and wee neighing ponies will be the order of things two weeks from today and tomorrow, October, 20 and 21 when the second annual fall horse show will be given on the streets of Rushville. The officers of the meeting and a large number of enthusiasts met in the sheriff's office in the court house last night and completed arrangements for the annual event.

For some time it has been the foregone conclusion that the show would not be given this year. Although the event last year was a success, even more so that the most optimistic had expected, it was a hard and weary task for the promoters who spent many hours for the cause without any remuneration. Much of the weight also fell on the shoulders of the business men who furnished the money by popular subscription for the premiums.

This year the committee on finance will tempt to make the subscription list as popular as possible and enlist the services and the pocket books of all classes for the good of the cause. They intend to start a campaign for money as soon as possible and insure the success of the show.

There seems to be no reason why Rushville should not have a successful horse show every year which will vie with the best in the land. They have a wealth of material to draw from in the country in that Rush county is recognized as one of the best horse centers in the State. Rush county animals have won the blue ribbon in all parts of the country and her products have taken money on the race track also.

At the meeting last night last years officers were re-elected and committees to have charge of the work were appointed. The officers of the organization are as follows:

President, Homer Powell; Vice-president, Wm. King; treasurer, P. A. Miller; secretary, F. H. Davis.

Committee on Finance—Ab. Denning, Albert Winship, R. S. Davis. Committee on Arrangements—Wm. Price, Fon Riggs, P. A. Miller.

Committee on Decorations—T. W. Betker, Will Bliss, F. E. Wallace.

Committee on Premiums—W. L. King, Sherman O'Neil, John Hiner.

Committee on Music—P. A. Miller, Jerome Sampson.

Committee on Advertisement—Dr. F. H. Davis, Wm. Price, John Davis, Floyd Hogsett.

Superintendent of Draft class—Wm. Brown.

Superintendent of Mules—Wm. Pearson.

Superintendent of General Purpose—Elmer Hume.

Superintendent of Light Harness—Willard Amos.

Superintendent of Ponies—H. G. Hackman and Floyd Hogsett.

Superintendent of Automobiles—Tom Arbuckle, A. B. Irvin and Frank Green.

BIG LOT SALE TO START SOON

And it is Decided That All Exhibits be Ready in the Y. M. C. C. Headquarters.

DETAIL WORK IS NECESSARY

Before the Final Rush Begins—The Prospects Are Getting Brighter Every Day.

While it is desired that agricultural products should be brought to the Y. M. C. C. headquarters as rapidly as possible, it is recognized that the farmers have had good cause to be busy and the exhibits will be welcomed at headquarters whether they are a little late or not. The Y. M. C. C. wants a big exhibit, something commensurate with the importance of the agricultural interests.

The lot sale will be started within a few days. People will come here from a distance and this exhibit will be beneficial in the impression it creates. Contracts have been closed for the location of two important industries. Another will be closed within a very few days. Many of the people of Rushville do not yet realize how important the movement is. All are welcomed at headquarters. Many people do not understand the immense amount of detail work necessary in getting everything ready for the lot sale. Conditions are brightening every day. The manager of one of the factories which is to locate here was in Rushville yesterday with his wife looking for a residence to buy.

The exhibit at the Y. M. C. C. headquarters has shown the people of Rushville within the past few days many things about the industries and resources of Rushville and of Rush county that a great many people did not know. The Y. M. C. C. movement will demonstrate to the people of this community their own strength. Many an individual by trying, finds he is capable of doing many things which he has thought almost impossible. A mountain may look very steep and inaccessible at a distance, but there is nearly always a way up and the difficulties disappear as the ascent is made.

The greatest resources of any community lies in the resourcefulness of the people themselves. Exercise of capacities develops this. If a man never uses one set of muscles, those muscles grow weak and decrepid. If he never uses certain faculties of his mind, those faculties become benumbed. "I can" and "I will" overcome obstacles where "I can't" lies down trembling in dismay. Let one consider what was accomplished by the settlers of the rock-bound coasts of New England, in a country which had very little natural resources. In the early history of the country, the people of these bleak shores furnished the fishermen, the ship builders and the sailors of the country at large. Later in New England the people, somewhat discouraged at the meager results from agriculture, began to build up manufacturing enterprises. New England furnished the mills and the manufacturing operatives for the country. They took chances to do these things. From these industries wealth has been poured into the New England States from all parts of the country.

It seems to be the rule that where nature has been especially provident man becomes improvident. Contrast what has been accomplished in the Yankee States with the heretofore general lethargy of the inhabitants of the Yazoo delta of Mississippi, for example, in the building of industrial enterprises. Environment has developed the inventive and managing

WILSON WON THE FEATURE OF DAY

Took First Money in 2:09 Pace With Byron K. at Illinois State Fair Yesterday.

PACING TEAM MADE FAILURE

Although the famous team, Lady Maud C. and Hedgewood Boy, failed to lower their world's record of 2:02 3/4 at the Illinois State fair at Springfield yesterday, their driver has been breaking into the money in other entries in the races. Yesterday he won the feature race of the day's program with Byron K., who finished first in the fourth and fifth heats of the 2:09 pace, the best time being made in 2:05 3/4. Byron K. has been in the money before this season, but had never won a race.

On the first day of the meeting Wilson won first money in the 2:35 trot with Ruby Patchen, who acted badly at the Columbus meeting last week. This is the first race she has won this season although she has finished in the money. The pacing team to the pole negotiated their best mile in 2:05 3/4.

SCHOOL CASE OUT OF COURT

Judge Sparks Sustains Demurrer to Complaint of Dan Shawhan to Recover Land.

PROVISIONS OF OLD DEEDS

Much Interest in the Final Outcome as it Will Affect Many Other Cases.

Considerable interest was taken in the action of Judge Sparks in sustaining a demurrer to the complaint of Dan Shawhan in circuit court this morning. Mr. Shawhan is suing Ed Laughlin to recover school property which it is alleged has been abandoned.

The deed was made back in 1856 and it is said that there was a provision in the deed that when the land was abandoned for school purposes it should revert to the original owners. The ruling of Judge Sparks this morning, however, did not have any direct bearing on the issue at stake. He sustained the demurrer on the ground that important points concerning the deed had been omitted.

Since there has been a general movement toward the combination of schools over the county there are now many abandoned schools and the land and buildings are idle. In many cases the deeds for the lands were made with provisions that in case the land was abandoned for school purposes it was to revert to the original owner. The final outcome of this case, which is now really out of court since Judge Sparks sustained the demurrer, will be watched with much interest. There are many who believe that the land will not revert, but remain the property of the township.

COURT DASHES WALSH'S HOPES

Verdict of Guilty Will Not Be Disturbed.

ONE MORE HOPE IS HELD OUT

Unless the Supreme Court Upsets the Decision of the Federal Court of Appeals, John R. Walsh Must Serve His Sentence—Opinion of Court of Appeals Deals Largely With Criminal Intent and Holds That There is No Inconsistency in the Verdict.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Unless the supreme court upsets the affirmation of the verdict of guilty handed down by the United States circuit court of appeals here, John R. Walsh, convicted of misapplication of the funds of the Chicago National bank, must serve his sentence of five years' imprisonment imposed upon him by the trial jury.

Counsel for Mr. Walsh in their appeal laid the greatest stress on what they alleged was a lack of criminal intent on the part of the defendant. In the very long brief which they filed much law was quoted to show that the convicted banker, newspaper publisher and railroad owner used the funds of the bank in what he considered a legitimate manner.

The opinion of the court of appeals is brief and confined almost wholly to the question of criminal intent.

"So long as there is no inconsistency in the verdict as to the substance of the matter charged in the various counts," says the opinion, "the verdict will not be disturbed. If the gravamen of the charge in each count on which there has been a verdict of guilty is the same, there is no inconsistency in the verdict."

Counsel for Mr. Walsh have thirty days in which to file application for a rehearing by the court of appeals. Meanwhile he will be at liberty under his present bond of $50,000.

THE KING WORRIED

Edward Seeking Way to Avert Constitutional Struggle.

London, Oct. 6.—Last evening Premier Asquith left London unexpectedly for Balmoral, whither he was summoned by telegram by the king. The premier left the house of commons in the middle of the debate on the most important clauses of the budget.

It is generally believed that the royal influence is being exercised to avert a grave constitutional struggle.

Like his subjects, the king is taking the keenest interest in the budget controversy, which grows in intensity as the discussion of the details of the finance bill in the commons draws to a close. His majesty is extremely anxious to prevent a crisis, which will arise if the house of lords rejects the bill, and he is using his influence to arrange a way out of the difficulty which could be accepted by the government and the Unionists.

STATE FAIR SPECIAL IN DEADLY COLLISION

Four Killed in Wreck Near Farmer City, Ill.

Farmer City, Ill., Oct. 6.—Three miles south of here last night, in a collision between the state fair special from Springfield and a southbound passenger train on the Illinois Central, four persons were killed and thirty injured, several fatally.

The wreck occurred on a curve, while the trains were running at a high rate of speed, and the trains came together with terrific impact.

The northbound train was heavily loaded with visitors returning home from the state fair at Springfield. The southbound train, which left Farmer City at 9 p. m., was crowded with delegates to the Sunday school convention which concluded its session at Farmer City last night. The train consisted of engine and three cars. Misconstruction of orders caused the wreck. Engineers of both trains jumped and escaped death.

REV. SHEPPARD WAS ACQUITTED

Libel Charge Against Missionary Fell Flat.

BEAT BELGIAN GOVERNMENT

Charges Growing Out of an Expose of Alleged Atrocities Against Natives in the Congo Were Not Sustained When the Libel Suit Against the Rev. W. H. Sheppard Was Brought to Trial—Suit Was Considered as Practically One by Government Against Missionaries.

Leopoldville, Belgian Congo, Oct. 6.—An American missionary, the Rev. W. H. Sheppard, has been acquitted of the charges of libel brought against him by one of the Congo concession companies which has a monopoly of rubber gathering in the Kasai region.

Two American missionaries, W. H. Sheppard and the Rev. William Morrison, were charged with "calumnious denunciation" and libel by the concession company referred to in the above dispatch. The suit was based on an article which appeared in the Kasai Herald. The charges against Mr. Morrison, however, were withdrawn. The company sought to recover $6,000 from Mr. Sheppard.

In substance the charges made by the missionaries were that Congo officials levy upon the natives oppressive taxes to be paid in rubber; that whole villages, including women and children, are impressed by the soldiers for gathering the rubber; that they often are compelled to travel many miles to the rubber forests and to sleep there for more than a week under unhealthy conditions; that they are cruelly punished for failure to meet the taxes imposed, and that so large a proportion of their time is taken for gathering these taxes that they are unable to cultivate crops and raise food necessary for their support.

The Belgian government holds half the stock of the Kasai company, and a majority of the company directors are Belgian officials, so that the suit has been considered as practically one by the Belgian government against the missionaries.

INDIANA LAWS TO BE ENFORCED

Determined Sentiment Expressed in That Direction.

CLOSE OF NOTABLE MEETING

The Indiana Law Enforcement Convention at Indianapolis Has Stimulated and Invigorated Those Whose Duty It Is to Bring Offenders to Law—Particular Attention Given the Subject of "Blind Tigers" and Juvenile Delinquents.

Indianapolis, Oct. 6.—The closing meeting of the Indiana law enforcement convention last night in Roberts Park church was addressed by Judge Cassius C. Hadley of the Indiana appellate court bench, on "Reverence for Law," and by George W. Young of Louisville, who is assistant superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America. The attendance was disappointing, but the addresses were notable.

The addresses and discussions yesterday were on questions of the practical application of law. The early part of the morning was given to the consideration of the duties and methods of prosecuting attorneys, and this was followed by a like consideration of mayors. The speakers, as a rule, were prosecutors and mayors who have been signally successful in enforcing the liquor laws, the first one being Walter F. Wood, prosecutor of Sullivan county, where the county jail has been overflowing at times with captured blind tiger keepers who have received the full measure of the law.

Wood was followed by ex-District Prosecutor Wilbur Ryman of Muncie, who made one of the most notable addresses of the convention. Charles H. Rigdon, mayor of Warsaw, could not be present to open, in person, the discussion of the work of mayors in law enforcement, but he did so by proxy by sending a strong paper which was read by George E. Hicks of South Bend. Mayor W. A. Bridges of Franklin and others participated in the discussion.

The opening of the "question box" indicated that trouble is brewing for druggists in this state. Delegates from all parts of the state desired information on how to deal with the drug store "blind tiger." And there was a demand for more effective weapons than those now provided, and not generally known. They were pointed out by R. C. Minton—revocation of right to sell liquor for any purpose on first conviction and revocation of pharmaceutical license for the second violation of the Indiana liquor laws.

Judge George W. Stubbs told of the juvenile court and its mission, declaring in conclusion that, after all, the staff on which the juvenile court judge must lean is the volunteer probation officer. "If," said the judge, "the boys who are starting on the wrong road and the girls who are joining that class of whom it was said by one of old, 'their feet take hold on hell, their steps lead down to death,' are saved from becoming criminals and from leading lives of shame, it will be found that the kindly, sympathetic assistance of the volunteer probation officer will be the potent factor in the work."

UP TO THE JURY

Judge Tells Them Sunday Baseball Law Is Unconstitutional.

Indianapolis, Oct. 6.—According to the instructions of Judge James A. Pritchard of criminal court to the jury in the prosecution of Charles C. Carr, manager of the Indianapolis baseball team, who is charged with desecrating the Sabbath by playing ball on Sunday, May 23, the Sunday baseball law passed by the Indiana legislature in 1909 is unconstitutional.

There was no question raised in the trial as to the fact that Mr. Carr actually played baseball on Sunday, and the matters which the jury will have to determine will be purely legal in their nature. As the jury has the right to determine for itself what the law is, and is under no obligation to abide by the court's instructions, the instructions can be nothing more than a guide for the jury to follow as it chooses.

Whatever the verdict, it is probable that an appeal will be taken to the supreme court.

Bees return to their hives in a direct line when they have been carried away and liberated, up to two miles. This has been supposed to be due either to the sense of sight or of smell, but experiments of Gaston Bower have proved that neither sight nor smell can serve the purpose and that bees have a special "sense of directions." This sense is not in the antennae.

The annual emigration from Europe amounts to 960,000. A small percentage of these persons return after a few years.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

AUTO TRUCK GOES SOME.

(Greensburg News.)
The Rapid truck proved to be the best commercial automobile ever brought to Decatur county, and won additional laurels Friday.

The ton and a half truck owned by the Goyert Produce company was driven to Clarksburg and return, a total distance of twenty-four miles, in the remarkably short time of two hours and ten minutes.

Included in this remarkable time one takes into consideration the time spent in loading some 1500 pounds on the car. Henry Kammerling, the driver of the car, says he did not crowd his machine at any time and those who know Henry would not dare to think for a minute that he crowded himself while stopping in Clarksburg. Truly, the record the Rapid made on this trip is a worthy one and Henry is entitled to receive bouquets without the slightest blush of embarrassment.

WILSON'S NEW TRIAL.

(Connersville News.)
"I have concluded to grant John Wilson a new trial." This in substance if not verbatim were the words of Judge Gray in open court Monday. He then fixed Monday, October 18, as the date when the trial should begin.

This will have been the third time on which John Wilson has been arraigned for the alleged murder of his wife, Maud Wilson, at their home, just north of the city on March 3, last. At the first trial it was understood that there was practical agreement as to guilt, but failure to agree as to punishment, resulting in a "hung" jury. At the second trial there was a unanimous verdict of guilty and Wilson's punishment was fixed at imprisonment for life.

The second trial took place or rather it was set down during the same term as the first. Many attorneys declared that it was almost without precedent, that so important a case should be pushed through when the term was really nearing the end. The case was called on Saturday, the last day of the last term and the selection of a jury was not completed until Monday, when the regular term had expired.

When a verdict of guilty was returned Wilson's attorneys made a motion to set aside the proceedings on the ground that the case was not legally in progress at the end of the term. Judge Gray overruled this motion.

"Time's Flight Turned Backward" SAGE AND SULPHUR Made Her look Twenty Years Younger

READ MRS. HERRICK'S SWORN STATEMENT

STATE OF NEW YORK ss. Rochester, N. Y.

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a school girl I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair, that was so plentiful, rich and glossy, that it was the envy of many of my young schoolmates, and attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. After I was married and as I grew older, my hair commenced to come out just a little at first, but gradually as time passed it came out more and more, and began to turn gray. I was induced by many good reports heard of Sage and Sulphur, to try a bottle. My hair was quite gray and thin on top when I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and you may imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, becoming thicker, darker, smoother and glossier than it had been for a long time. I continued the use of Sage and Sulphur and my hair is now in a splendid condition, as heavy and as dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. From my experience I believe it is one's own fault if they lose their hair, or let it get gray or harsh. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and still use it, and my hair still keeps thick, dark, smooth and glossy.

Sworn to before me this 14th day of July, 1902

"HOWDY PAP" AND "OH, YOU MOOSE!"

This is What You May Expect After Lodge is Organized in This City.

WHAT THE ORDER STANDS FOR

Pretty soon we may expect to hear our citizens greet each other as "Howdy Pap" or "Oh you Moose."

The Moose are certainly a good natured lot of people who seem to see the bright side of life. They are a bunch of optimists—they see the sunshine in everything and the principal features of the order are purity, aid and progress.

Messrs. Hartman and Buchanan both say that the order is by no means a charitable institution. There is nothing of the "needy brother" business; their aid is extended to those who require help, in a quiet and dignified manner, without display or pyrotechnics and the help they extend is multifold.

Rushville is going to have a good strong lodge and the work is moving along nicely without any rush or hustle, but steady and in proper channels.

BIG LOT SALE TO START SOON

capacity of the people of the New England States.

The hum of industry has been heard everywhere in those prosperous manufacturing towns. Railroads were built to carry the products. The people of the Central Western States found that, instead of shipping raw materials clear to New England and having them shipped back in manufactured products, it was cheaper and better to place the factories in their midst. The discovery of natural gas gave the greatest impetus to manufacturing in Indiana. Towns and cities grew amazingly. The people of Indiana found that they had among themselves as much capacity for manufacturing as the people of the New England States had. A transportation system unequaled anywhere in the world grew up. Manufacturers found that they had a great advantage in being in the center of population of the country. Processes of production and marketing were studied as never before. Results have been in the main gratifying.

Descendants of the original Puritans saw the point and many of them have moved west with the factories. In fact few of the original population is left in the New England States. Their places have been largely filled with foreigners. The original Yankees have come west and mixed and married with families of southern descent. In fact, the southern States themselves now are more Puritan in their characteristics than the people of the neighborhood of Boston are. This evolution has done great things. It has made us a broader-minded, more intelligent and liberal and progressive people. The peculiarly cosmopolitan extraction of the people of Indiana has made them open-minded for new ideas and new methods of improvement. Many have hunted advantages for agricultural conquest upon the cheaper lands of the West and Southwest. The agricultural development in such localities as Rush county has reached about as high a development as it is possible for any community to reach.

The necessity of building up larger home markets for agricultural products by stimulating manufacturing industries in contiguous cities and towns has become apparent. It is recognized that manufacturing entails more risks than does agriculture and that the manufacturer draws his revenue from the sales of his products from all parts of the country and disburses this money locally for raw materials, labor, improvements, etc. He stands in a different relation to the community than the merchant or the farmer or the professional man. If community, social and transportation advantages are equal, it matters little to him in what town his factory is placed, if he can get efficient and manageable labor. The well being of his family and his employees are important to him. It is to his advantage to have his employees learn their work well and to progress in efficiency, to have them sober, reliable and industrious and to become attached in interest to the community. He understands that these things are results more attainable in the smaller cities than in the larger cities where many laborers have a habit of "floating" from plant to plant.

The risks of manufacturing are greater than they are in farming. The adoption of some new patented process may put a factory to the bad in the markets of the world unless it can obtain the new process upon reasonable terms. The danger of damage from fires and from labor disturbances is greater. While the manufacturer must take greater risks than the farmer, when he "makes good" and his products become favorably known and find a ready market through the country or throughout the world, his industry has a much larger chance to grow to a big thing and benefit the community very greatly. Examples of this kind can be found upon every hand in the smaller cities of Indiana.

It must be admitted that immediately there is an objection in the mind of almost every individual to the granting of subsidies to industries, before that person has examined the subject. A great outcry was made against the granting of land for the building of the Union Pacific railway. Yet the building of that railroad made valuable land which was theretofore worthless. Towns and cities grew up rapidly in a country which before that time had been a desert waste. The granting of tax subsidies to industries leaves "sore spots" because in this case all have to help whether they desire to do so or not.

The method of assisting such industries to get established in communities which has been most successfully followed of late is that of granting a site and giving the people who own the factory a certain amount derived from a lot sale of an addition, the lots of which are voluntarily bought by citizens and other investors. This plan has the unqualified advantage of enabling those who join their efforts for the good of the community value received for their money outlay; for, with the location of factories, homes are needed for employes, many improvements are made and the lots soon increase in value far beyond the original investment.

There are, of course, some risks in this plan, but if the work be in the hands of competent people who know how to locate good industries and select desirable ground for the addition they are very few, almost nothing.

A farmer remarked that it was better to make Rushville a thriving city than for him to sell and pay more for land near a larger and more active city.

Incidents and People

The little boys mother sent him down to a neighbor's residence in North Main street to borrow some ceiling wax. She had instructed her young son to be sure and tell the obliging friend that she would pay her back just as soon as she went down town. The youth was started on his mission, repeating over and over the words which his mother had told him as he walked. He was almost to the house and he said them over just once before he entered for the trying ordeal. His tongue or his mind became twisted and he did make an awful botch of it. He returned home with the goods and presented it to his mother with the air of a conqueror.

"What did you tell Mrs. — you wanted, son?"

"I told her that my mama wanted to borrow some squealing wax and that she would charge her when she saw her again."

HE "BARELY" SPOKE.

He was one of those bashful chaps which you often find in the fifth grade at school. He was bright, and seldom let a chance go by without answering a question. And more than that he knew what he was talking about generally.

But one day he got up against it. Teacher was not thoughtful and asked him a question which he thought was embarrassing. And the way he saw it, it was a little trying for him. "John give me a sentence using the word outstripped."

"Now, I don't want to."

"But do you know how to use the word?" asked the teacher.

"Yes mam, but I don't want to," mumbled the lad as he chewed the end of his largest finger.

After being repeatedly urged to use the word "outstripped," he got up and looking at his toes, and speaking in a tone scarcely audible he said:

"Well, I was out stripped in the pond once last summer."

And that boy lives right here in Rushville, too.

Rural route carriers do enjoy the weather these beautiful Indian summer days and a jolt or interruption of their train of thoughts when they are in an esthetic mood has the same effect as a rainy, dreary day does on a poet. George Aultman was driving over his route the other day, dreaming of the beautiful landscape when suddenly Zip! Bang! Boom! and something hit his wagon like a thousand of brick all in one bunch. He could not collect his thoughts for a minute—for they had all been shattered by the blow—and when he did he turned around to locate the cause of the sudden impact with his wagon. There was an automobile with its headlights all shattered and the brass parts on the front of the car were considerably bent. That thing had evidently hit his wagon and how the wagon had been able to keep its equilibrium was a mystery to him.

"Excuse me, but I pulled the wrong lever," said the driver at the helm. "That's all right, but when you are practicing please get farther away from me," was all Mr. Aultman had to say.

GIRL WHO SAVED A BOY.

Connersville boys seem to be unusually fond of Rushville girls. Of course their taste is not bad, but their judgment is awful. This was shown by an incident at the traction station here the other evening. Johnnie had come over to see Nellie, and Nellie was not at the traction station to meet him.

Now Johnnie is just at that age where he thinks there is only one girl and that she should think there is just one boy. But Nellie sees it differently and she had another "gemmen friend" on this particular evening. Johnnie wandered around the streets and told people that if he did not find Nellie Only girl he would kill himself. Either people did not take him seriously or they thought he might as well and be out of his misery. But at last the nearly fatal meeting took place.

Nellie met him and refused to leave the man she was with. Whereas upon Johnnie snatched a bottle of carbolic acid from his pocket and was about to drink the deadly poison and end his "hateful existence" when to the rescue came Nellie—cruel Nellie, who had spared him. She dashed the poison from his hands, and a life was saved.

Then there were cheers from the gallery for this is a real-for-sure love story. The boy says he will kill himself yet and the girl says he will too, if she has to keep him from it next time. No wedding bells for hers, she says.

AMUSEMENTS

The DeRussell company of which Clayton Wolverton of this city is a member is putting on a week's engagement of talking pictures at the Orpheum theater in Hillsboro, Ohio. The press notices are very commendatory and speak words of praise for the company. They have given many shows here at the Vaudet theater and always make good. They have several other engagements in Ohio cities.

The Star-Grand offers two subjects tonight. The first subject is a drama entitled "Hunted to the End." The second subject is a comedy entitled "A Paying Business."

The Vaudet offers an exceptionally fine program tonight in a late high class production entitled "1776" or the "Hessian Renegades." It is a story full of teeming interest and is characterized by brilliant actors in the portrayal of vivid climaxes and situations. Everything is great and it is a Biograph. Mrs. Blanche Wolverton will sing the illustrated song, "My Road to Happiness Leads Through Your Love."

The management has also obtained the Thomas Sisters to put on a musical act tonight. They have appeared here before and have won a warm place in the hearts of the theatergoers.

"Wireless telegraphy!" exclaimed the naval man. "Do you mean to tell me that you understand wireless telegraphy too?"

"Not very much," confessed the girl, "but I do know something about it. Edward taught me the rudiments, and then I went to work myself. I got some of the men up from the shops, and they rigged up a station for me at the top of the house. Father did not know a thing about it until one day I brought him up there and showed him. He didn't think it was very nice for a girl, but what could he do?"

"Oh," said Sommers, "I see your system. You do what you please and then make him agree."

"Don't you think it a good one?" inquired the girl innocently.

The man smiled and shrugged his shoulders.

"Good for little things, but how would it work for a big one?"

The question was lightly put, and all three were smiling. The smiles on the men's faces were just a bit set, for behind that question both knew there was a great deal left unsaid.

Frances tossed her head lightly, but the tone of her answer was vital with disfavor.

"And on the big ones, too, Mr. Sommers. I do always what seems best to me."

Pinckney turned away sharply, while the smile in the face of the naval officer became more natural and a little broader.

"You know I'd like to see this wireless room," he said. "It must be a bully place."

"Oh, it's a workroom," the girl insisted—"nothing foolish about it. I'm not as good yet as Edward at sending and taking, but then I have more time to practice, and if he doesn't hustle I'll beat him."

"You flatter me," said Pinckney. "Really, Mr. Sommers, she can beat me. I think, but we do have great fun working over it."

"Yes; Edward and I are more or less partners—in this," agreed Frances.

"Partners?"

Sommers tried to keep his tone lightly unpersonal, but a little hardness had to creep in. The two men were so naturally antagonistic that probably they must have taken opposite sides on anything, and the feeling of each for the girl only tended to bring out more keenly their inborn antipathy.

Since the afternoon when Pinckney interrupted the practical love scene between Frances and Sommers on the hill above the works the tension had been greater than ever between the men. Each treated the other with elaborate courtesy, but it needed only a word on either side to bring about real trouble.

The more impulsive and domineering Pinckney had been close to the limit of endurance several times, and on each occasion the cool courtesy, the splendid self control and the good breeding of the naval officer had prevented an outbreak. Sommers realized his position. He knew that Pinckney was the manager of the works where his gun was to be cast. He knew also that Pinckney probably in the end would marry the girl they both loved, and in many respects he had the right of way. All this had made the naval man circumspect in his dealings. He could not afford to have an open break with Pinckney.

An open fight between a naval officer on duty, as Sommers practically was, and a manager of a big gun works must result in a court martial and the possible disgrace of the officer, and unless the provocation were great it would mean bringing the uniform into disrepute by conduct which might be construed as unbecoming an officer and a gentleman. Pinckney had no one except Mr. Durant to whom he must account, and Sommers knew that a man as clever and as unscrupulous as he believed Pinckney in some ways to be would not hesitate to do anything that might put a rival in an embarrassing position. However, the naval man could not imagine for a moment that the manager could be guilty of any conduct that might injure his work. He considered the matter between them entirely a personal fight, and he believed that Pinckney's ill will would not go further than some petty spite to injure him or supplant him with Miss Durant. The thought that Pinckney and the girl were partners in a wireless telegraph scheme against his will irritated the lieutenant.

"Couldn't I see the room?" he asked.

"Though it does seem rather queer your having a workroom instead of a music room or a studio."

"Or a dressing room," laughed Frances.

"Yes, or a dressing room," he agreed. "That's the sort of thing we might expect our young women of today to have."

The girl tilted her chin proudly.

"Well, Mr. Doubter, if you will just come with me I'll show you it's a real workroom."

"Indeed I will," he agreed eagerly. The girl arose.

"Come on, then."

They had almost reached the door when she remembered that Pinckney had not been included in her invitation. He was standing over by the mantel, both hands stuffed in his pockets, and was grimly looking into the fire.

"Oh, I forgot!" she exclaimed. "You want to come too, Edward? If you do, come ahead."

For a second he seemed about to accept her invitation. Then she added quickly:

"But, then, it would bore you. You can come up any time."

The manager shrugged his shoulders with elaborate carelessness.

"Yes; I have something to do," he confessed.

Then, after they had gone, he turned back to the fire angrily with a muttered exclamation:

"I'll fix that young cub!"

CHAPTER IV. A DESPERATE GAME.

LEUTENANT SOMMERS looked around at the complete little workshop in amazement. Besides the wireless outfit, he saw tools, models, sharps, a drawing table, a little workbench—everything, in fact, that it seemed to him a mechanical inventor would really need.

"You use all these!" he exclaimed.

"Why, of course!" she said. "This is my fun. I work up here on dark days, and we have plenty of those in Pittsburgh, you know."

The man could not have controlled his astonishment. He examined several of the models. They were on improvements in wireless telegraphy, various mechanical devices and on even the model of a little gun.

"Oh, I've patented them all!" exclaimed Frances. "I don't know that any of them amounts to much, but I patented them just the same. You see, you're not the only gun inventor, Mr. Sommers."

"Then the Sommers gun has to compete with the Frances Durant gun?" he asked quizzically.

She shook her head, smiling.

"No; I'll tell you a secret. I wouldn't let them make a gun of mine if I could patent it, but that is just a little model of the Rhinestrom gun, which Edward has great faith in. Marsh made the model for me."

"Oh, the Rhinestrom gun!" said Sommers, with lifted eyebrows. "I've

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Rushville Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well, kidneys secrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Rushville proof:

Mrs. M. T. Lewark, 1023 N. Perkins St., Rushville, Ind., says: "I felt miserable for some time and the kidney secretions caused me great annoyance by their irregularity in passage. In the morning I felt very tired and I had little strength or energy. Deciding to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I obtained a box from F. B. Johnson & Co.'s drug store. They have brought me great benefit, removing the lameness in my back and strengthening my kidneys. I think highly of this remedy."

works Your man Marsh seems to have great faith in it. Who is this Rhinestrom?"

Frances shook her head.

"I don't know. Think he must be some German. Edward just told me that we had bought the patents and controlled them. But that doesn't affect your gun any, does it?"

Sommers looked up from the model he had been studying.

"Frankly," he said, "if this model is correct it won't affect my gun. The Sommers gun has the good points of this one and a new principle which I expect will partly revolutionize things for whoever manufactures it."

"It all depends on the forging. If my gun is forged right and properly tempered, well," he paused, then went on with a confident smile—"I don't want to brag, but honestly I am not afraid of any gun that ever was cast. It will all be in the forging, and tomorrow will tell that. We'll put it through tomorrow night."

"Oh, I hope it goes through all right!" cried the girl. "It must go through! It would be terrible to think of a failure."

"Yes," he said grimly, "it would."

"It would mean," she asked, "the blasting of your hope?"

He shrugged his shoulders.

"That would be a minor consideration. It would mean death to the men who are handling the gun and court martial and disgrace for me. You see why I'm interested."

"But there's no chance of a failure," she exclaimed, her eyes big with alarm. Sommers laughed.

"Not of the Durant works, I think," he said. "That's why I was glad when the government decided to have a gun cast here. Your father's plant there has a reputation for the highest class, most careful work, so I feel safe, even if you do own patents on the Rhinestrom gun."

"You'll be here for the forging?" she asked.

"Of course," he replied. "I'll be down in the works superintending as much as I can."

"And I," murmured the girl, half to herself, "will be up here waiting eagerly, anxiously, watching for you to come with the news that everything has gone right. Oh, what a pity it is that you should invent this gun and not get anything for your brains and your labor!"

He shook his head, smiling.

"No," he said; "it's right. That's part of the contract I made with Uncle Sam when he took me in at Annapolis. He educated me, gave me the chance to work, and I promised to devote my life to him."

"We're all merely cogs in the big machine, Miss Durant, we fellows from Annapolis and West Point, cogs in the machine that makes the flag, and the flag's the biggest thing to us, you know. It's hard sometimes, fearfully hard. We have to give up a lot. But it's duty, and duty is what we must think of."

The girl had been looking at him, admiration and just a hint of something more showing in her face.

"Yes," she said at last; "after all, you men of the navy and the army are the real patriots working for your country. You seem to be about the only ones who do any real sacrificing."

Then her voice became more earnest. "But I don't see why you should sacrifice everything."

The man laughed somewhat grimly. "That's just it, you see," he said. "We try not to sacrifice everything. We always try not to sacrifice our self respect, I think."

"Self respect, fiddlesticks! It isn't self respect men won't sacrifice," she snapped. "It's generally selfishness. Oh, how you men do love to fool yourselves! You step back and stand on your dignity, so proud and hard and rigid, and you pretend you're suffering, that you are heroes who won't sacrifice self respect, and in reality you are nothing of the kind. You are simply stupid self deceivers who are willing to sacrifice your future, happiness, everything, on the altar of your own selfishness—really sacrifice yourselves and sometimes!"

She paused suddenly, aghast at what she was about to say.

"And sometimes?" the man questioned unsteadily.

"And sometimes girls talk more than they should," she ended sharply. Then she looked at him with a sudden smile and quick change of mood that baffled him completely. "I think it's time we went back to wireless telegraphy, don't you?"

THE HURLEY CASE

Virginia Officers Seek Clue to the Sex-tuple Murderer.

Graham, Va., Oct. 6.—A search is being made for the money taken from the aged Mrs. Justis and secreted by the murderer after he had killed her and her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Meadows and their children, near Hurley, Va., a few nights ago. Howard Little, who is under arrest, charged with having committed the sextuple murder, still protests he is innocent. His wife, who says she is telling all she knows regarding the actions of her husband, designated a spot where she thinks the money taken from Mrs. Justis is hidden. Mrs. Little gave this information since learning that her husband had been preparing to leave for the west with another woman.

It has been established that the wound in Little's leg was not received while trimming a tree with an ax, as he claims. To every appearance the bloodstained trousers which Mrs. Little says she washed on the morning after the murder are the same trousers which were cut by the ax. Some of the Meadows family were killed with an ax. The theory is that the person who committed the murder wounded himself accidentally with the ax.

THIRTY MINERS DEAD; MANY MORE TRAPPED

Deadly Explosion in Colliery At Victoria.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 6.—As the result of an explosion at the Extension mine of the Wellington Colliery company, thirty miners are known to be dead. The death list likely will be even larger, as sixty miners were entombed by the explosion, with slight chance of rescue.

The shock was terrific, but its effect was confined to the stope wherein it occurred. All of the men in the other stopes and levels escaped. The rescuers hoped the flames would die down, so as to permit the rescue of the entombed, but their chances seem hopeless.

The explosion was due to fire-damp, the timbers in two levels at once igniting and the fire spreading with great rapidity.

Poison in Their Beer.

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 6.—What bid fair to be a double poison tragedy was cut in half by the recovery of Mary Webb, housekeeper for Edward Provost, a carpenter of this city, who died of the effects of poisoned beer that both drank. Mrs. Webb, after remaining in a critical condition all day, rallied and was pronounced out of danger. The case is a mystery.

Clarence Lebus Re-Elected. Winchester, Ky., Oct. 6.—Clarence

Lebus of Cynthiana, Ky., will continue as the head of the Kentucky Burley Tobacco Society. At a meeting of the district board held here Lebus was unanimously re-elected president of the society. It was also decided to remove the headquarters from here to Lexington.

Saved by His Seconds.

Boston, Oct. 6.—Young Corbett, former lightweight champion, was dragged from the ring by his seconds in the fifth round at the Armory Athletic association last night, after Dave Deshler of Cambridge, had sent the oldtime champion to the floor in bad shape.

Salt Lake City Jarred.

Salt Lake City, Oct. 6.—Three sharp and distinct earth shocks were felt here last night. The first occurred at 7:42 and the last at 7:45. All three were felt at points in Idaho.

ROYAL SPLendor

Will Mark the Reception Diaz is Preparing For Taft.

Mexico City, Oct. 6.—Mexico is preparing to entertain President Taft on a scale of magnificence such as has been seldom witnessed on the North American continent.

That all due honor may be done the executive head of the United States when he comes across the Rio Grande as the guest of President Diaz, orders have been issued which will carry to Ciudad Juarez the historical and celebrated presidential silver and plate, comprising a great portion of the silver and china forming the banquet service of Emperor Maximilian. On Oct. 9 a special train will leave here carrying the banquet service. The set comprises several thousand pieces and is said to compare favorably in richness and splendor with the famed sets of the old world royal families. A special florist and huge quantities of flowers will also be taken.

The carriages to be used by President Diaz and his cabinet have already started for the border. Massive Grecian columns are being erected in Juarez along the streets on which Presidents Taft and Diaz are to parade.

The work is being pushed on the Bonito Juarez monument so that General Diaz can lay the cornerstone of the $117,000 shaft to the memory of the man who forced Maximilian from the Mexican throne.

HIS HEART IS STILL IN THE PHILIPPINES

President Homesick At Sight of Departing Transport.

San Francisco, Oct. 6.—The transport Thomas was setting sail for the Philippines as President Taft was crossing from Oakland to San Francisco, and by the president's request the revenue cutter Golden Gate, on which he was a passenger, was drawn up alongside the big vessel the sides of which were lined with soldiers and the families of officers.

On the bridge of the transport the Philippine constabulary band was drawn up and was playing "Hail to the Chief" as the president shouted across the water to the khaki-clad soldiers:

"Good-by, boys, I wish you a pleasant voyage."

Answering cheers came back to the president, and as the transport started on her voyage again the president looked wistfully toward the Golden Gate.

"Does it make you feel homesick, Mr. President?" asked a member of the president's party.

"Indeed it does," replied Mr. Taft. "I would give anything if I were going with them." Last night the president was given a banquet at the Fairmont hotel by more than 600 residents of San Francisco, and later was entertained at the Press club. The president retired at midnight at the St. Francis hotel, and left at 8 o'clock this morning for the Yosemite valley.

Saloon Keeper Held Liable for Damages to Widow of Drunken Man.

Indianapolis, Oct. 6.—A judgment for $1,200 damages recovered by Mrs. Lizzie Niehaus against a saloon keeper at Huntingburg on account of the death of her husband by falling downstairs while intoxicated, has been affirmed by the appellate court. The defendant insisted that he did not know the husband was intoxicated at the time of the sale, but the court said his knowledge made no difference if the man was actually drunk at the time or if he habitually became intoxicated and due notice of that fact had been given.

A Probable Solution.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 6.—The solution of the mysterious inspection of John R. Walsh's southern Indiana road is said to be that instead of J. J. Hill being the probable purchaser the United States Steel company is after the property. The steel people have recently been giving the Southern Indiana all the coal they could and the new field being acquired will be far more contiguous to the Southern Indiana than to the Eastern Illinois.

Allen has installed an electric coffee grinder in his grocery store in North Main street. Now, instead of that hard work of grinding a pound of coffee, all he has to do is to press the button and the machine does the rest.

A human hair of average thickness can support a load of 6¼ ounces and the average number of hairs on the head is about 30,000. A woman's long hair has a total tensile strength of more than five tons and this strength can be increased one-third by twisting the hair.

The wine storage houses in France are now using cement tanks lined with glass instead of old wooden ones. The glass lining is used for two reasons—the acids in the liquor decompose the cement, while the cement absorbs the bouquet of the wine. A tank in Harve has a capacity of 290,000 gallons.

We Do House Painting

Our workmen are all old, experienced and reliable mechanics, and all our materials are fully guaranteed, so we CAN and DO guarantee all our work.

Why We Advocate Fall Painting

Because in the fall the weather is more uniformly warm and sunny and more settled.
Because in the fall paint can be more successfully applied than in damp, cloudy or unsettled weather.
Because in the fall there are usually no dust-laden, insect carrying winds.
Because in the fall the wood is dry and the paint penetrates deeper, securing a firmer hold on it.
Because in the fall a paint application dries harder, more naturally and consequently will wear longer.
